As far as the question about what is a hobbyist? Gosh, let me suggest you read a 200 page document on the definition of a hobbyist, or you truly just won't get it. I'll send you a vague numerical document title. Go fish. LOL. You know what a hobbyist operating a motor vehicle is — just from a lifetime of knowing what it is in your personal car. That actually WAS the example I used. How ...

FAR 47.31 tells how to apply for a certificate of registration, and specifies that when the FAA sends the permanent registration, the owner must keep the document in the aircraft. As the registered owner of an aircraft, FAR 91.403 makes you responsible for maintaining the aircraft in an airworthy condition. This includes complying with all FAA airworthiness directives (ADs) issued for your ...

Use the FAA's course for existing, manned aircraft pilots: The FAA released its own version of a Part 107 UAS online training course. But it likely won't be enough. That course is intended for Part 61 Pilot Certificate holders (people with an existing pilot's license). Thus, it glosses over vital information you'll need to know like weather and reading sectional charts. The good news ...
